Hi Evelyn,

Thank you for reaching out and we appreciate your consideration for our licensing and intellectual property requirements.

You can learn more about our trademark policy here: <https://grafana.com/trademark-policy/>

And you can learn more about the AGPLv3 license here: <https://www.gnu.org/licenses/agpl-3.0.en.html>

Without seeing how you refer to our organization within your images, or whether you provide source code per the AGPL license, we cannot certify your compliance.

However, from what you pasted in the screenshot, it appears that your use is in accordance with our guidelines. Please review both the policy and the license and proceed either as you are, or make necessary modifications within the offering itself to ensure you remain in compliance with these documents.

By the way, the AGPLv3 license does not apply until you upgrade to the next release of Grafana. Until then, the Apache License v.2.0 will apply to your use of the software. We do not have any of our software projects in the Apache Software Foundation, so we cannot answer your question in that regard.

Thanks again for reaching out and for your complying with our policies.

Regards,

Anne-Laure

Dear Sir or Madam,

I am a business assistant from Websoft9. I am very glad to contact you on behalf of our company. We are writing to consult you on questions regarding licensing and Grafana trademark use.

Websoft9 is an open source software company that focuses on automatic installation and deployment of cloud application software. We sort out high-quality open source software, package it with runtime into image without any change to source code, release source code for image on Github, and then distribute the image on Major Cloud, so as to provide one-click use for global users. Here is the link to the image of Grafana on AWS marketplace for you to get information clearly.

Grafana is the leading open source project for visualizing metrics. Raintank, Inc. dba Grafana Labs ("Grafana Labs") is the owner of numerous trademarks, including those identified in the non-exhaustive Trademark List included herein, its marks appearing in standard characters (the "Grafana Labs Text Mark(s)"), Referring to the license, it grants the rights to reproduce, distribute, and sell the work. Our product contains Grafana software. Hence, we are writing to confirm that under the AGPL-3.0 license, it is permissible for us to do the following:

1. To package Grafana with runtime into image and distribute the image on Major Cloud.
2. When we distribute it, we may use your word mark to describe the work in the following way for that we should indicate that we make use of your software and the product contains your software. Meanwhile, we make intellectual property statement about the product in order not to make users confused, as shown below.

3. To charge certain fees for developing image and providing users with professional service and support.

We highly respect your intellectual property rights. We'd like to make sure that our use is standard. We hope to get your clear reply on whether we are allowed to do the above three things under the Apache license and whether the use of your trademark is in line with your trademark policy. If, unfortunately, there is some misunderstanding or improper use, please inform us. We will correct it according to your request as soon as possible and get relevant permission. If it is permissible for us to do so, can we use and distribute other software produced by the ASF in the same way?

We are looking forward to your early reply. Hope to establish partnership with you!

Best regards,
Evelyn
